Makenna Sievertson | LAist

“The proposed $500 million gondola project would carry 5,000 visitors every hour from downtown’s Union Station to Dodger Stadium in about seven minutes. Opponents argue the construction would affect the Los Angeles State Historic Park and surrounding communities, and contend the money should instead be invested in more free shuttle buses.

The draft supplemental environmental impact report was released Monday, kicking off a 45-day public-comment period."
